3 They can't arrest 3M people. We need to escalate it and then burn it all down if we have to.

32 If you're going to exercise your 2a rights then you need to be with a large group also doing so. DC metro police are less than 5,000 strong. They'll have unarmed NG and probably some overtime-collecting Maryland police too. They can only divide and conquer. Even if they had 10,000 police, they can't arrest 100K armed patriots. What if there are a million?

The last tip I have if you're going to exercise your 2a rights is DO NOT go near the White House in any circumstance. Those SS snipers won't care about your rights.

24 ▾ Go in groups bigger than the police. They don't like to do things that look intimidating so give them a good glare.

(low estimates of) 10,000,000 million patriots losing their livelihoods and families or 6,000 DC police with a perfectly secure pension?

D.C. vs Heller says they can't legally ban guns anyways. Unconstitutional order. "Police" enforcing unconstitutional orders have broken their oath and are no longer law enforcement, but just hired muscle. They'll try and tell you that you can't have them in certain areas because of a protest, so group up in the areas where you can.
